

Garner Police Officers, members of the North Carolina Highway Patrol, and Town of Garner representatives carried the Special Olympics torch through Garner to Raleigh on Thursday as part of its 15 day, 2000 mile relay across North Carolina. The Flame of Hope began its' journey on May 15, 2008 in Waynesville, NC and continued across the state to Raleigh where it will officially open the 2008 SONC Summer games on June 6th. This year's torch run involved more that 2000 law enforcement officers from across North Carolina. The SONC Summer Games will host more than 1,300 athletes from 95 county based programs throughout North Carolina.

Each tournament entry includes cart, green fees, goody bag, and dinner.

Every year, 38,000 special needs athletes participate in twenty Olympic-style events with little or no government funding from North Carolina. SONC relies heavily on private donations to support the program. Thanks to hundreds of volunteers, SONC raises enough money each year to pay for athlete entry fees and travel costs associated with Special Olympics participation.
